BOSTON, MASS. a large jobbing trade, and the sales during July and August run considerably ahead of the same month the year previous. September opened well, but after the second week, trade eased off a little, and the month closed quiet. The failure of the old jobbing house of Wellington Brothers, on the 26th of September, caused some commotion and increased the caution of buyers, but in other respects had no injurious effects. During October, prices of Prints and Dress Goods were unsettled by the cutting under of New York jobbers, and the...
